

Of Life and Death

Every moment in us, a person dies and a person is born,
So what is Death but the ending of a cycle of life and death?
Death is the death of Death, of itself
And so is nothing bad.
It is merely when we stop being reinvented every nano-second,
Death comes in every instant, but so does life
So Dying is not anything peculiar,
Its net result is merely that a new life is not born
And surely what never existed was not lost,
And is nothing to fear or weep for?
